Project Type: Outdoor Living

About this Project:

This stunning British Arts and Crafts home features cedar shingles and stone exterior details. The centralized outdoor living space connects to the interior using Nana Wall technology. Motorized phantom screens allow the outdoor living space to open effortlessly to a private side yard and putting green. This spacious porch boasts an outdoor kitchen and a gracious stone fireplace. With the Nana Wall open & phantom screens up, this is the perfect place for indoor/outdoor entertaining. This Design Build home was a collaborative effort of PebbleDash Builders and The Studio of Christopher Phelps. Interior design and finish selections by Allard and Roberts.

Living Stone Construction, Inc.

Project Type: Historical Renovation

About this Project:

Built in 1886, the historic Heidelberg House has served as a hotel accommodating groups for over 127 years. However, due to the age of the structure a serious question needed to be answered: Tear it down or restore the exterior? Living Stone Construction took on the massive undertaking of revitalizing the exterior of the building by replacing the old siding, which contained asbestos and lead paint, with the environmentally friendly finishes. The renovation work included new hardi-plank siding, window restorations, miscellaneous rot and roof repairs, stucco and Sherwin Williams paint.
